A substitute specification in proper idiomatic English and in compliance with 37 CFR 1.52(a) and (b) is required. The substitute specification filed must be accompanied by a statement that it contains no new matter.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

It is noted that "similar materials" in claim 1, line 1 is confusing; claim 14 improperly depends on claim 1, and no antecedent basis is seen for "said secondary hole" of claim 18.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-18, as best understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rogers (note especially figure 9) or Watkin (note extension 12, in Fig. 1) both teaching the use of support characteristic altering holes in various body supports, but not the use of Latex as a material of construction, in view of Berman (note col. 2, line 12) teaching the use of Latex as a material of construction for various body supports, with various holes that have "stepped" shapes (e.g. Figs. 7, 8).

It would have been obvious to one ordinarily skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to have used Latex as a material of construction for Rogers' or Watkin's supports, because Berman recognizes the desirability of using Latex, in similar devices, in order to provide a more comfortable body support.

Lanteri (note col. 5, lines 10-18) and Van Valkenburgh (note Fig. 6), teaching the use of various firmness altering holes, are cited as relevant art.
